

What is claimed is:

1. A headphone device comprised of a headband assembly worn on the head and a headphone main body that is attached to at least one end of said headband assembly and has an internal speaker unit, wherein said headphone device is provided with an ear device that hangs on the ear and prevents slipping when worn.

2. A headphone device comprised of a headband assembly worn on the head and a headphone main body that is attached to at least one end of said headband assembly has and an internal speaker unit, wherein said headphone main body is attached to said headband assembly in a rotatable state so that the axis of rotation may be inclined with the center line of said headphone main body.